

BOWLER CASE IS REMANDED TILL MONDAY

Five charges of obtaining goods under false pretenses were brought against Norman W. Bowler in the British Police Court before Magistrate G. W. King yesterday.

The case was prosecuted by Mr. E. T. Maitland and the accused was unrepresented, though he stated before the noon adjournment that he wished to secure counsel. He reported in the afternoon that he had not been successful in this effort.

The charges against Bowler are that on June 11 he secured from Squires, Hingham and Co. a pair of shoes, valued at $8.50; on June 18, from J. Ullman and Co., a cigarette case, valued at $6; on June 20, from A. S. Watson and Co., a camera, case and films, valued at $69.60; on June 28 from the Shanghai Horse Bazaar and Motor Co., a Stud-baker motor car, valued at $1,800; on July 1, from the Young Photo Co., a camera, case and films, valued at $50.80.

Mr. Maitland told the Court that the accused had gone to the first three complainants and had used the name of the "Far Eastern Review." In the case of the motor car he had used the name "Bowen," and had given the address 16 Jinkee Road, which is the address of the "Far Eastern Review." The two cameras and the cigarette case had been recovered from pawn and the motor car had been found outside Eddy's Cafe, where Bowler was arrested by Detective Sub-Inspector Hunter, and had been returned to the Horse Bazaar.

Evidence of arrest was given by Detective Sub-Inspector Hunter. The next witness was Mr. W. C. Rea, publisher of "The Asiatic Motor," who stated that Bowler came to him last May and asked for a job. Witness told him that there was nothing for him on the "Far Eastern Review," but on being pressed, told him that he might collect advertisements and subscriptions for "The Asiatic Motor" or a commission basis. Bowler had never earned any commission, but had the loan of $5 from the witness. He had no authority whatever to use the name of "The Far Eastern Review," as there was no connection between the two papers.

Bowler then intimated that he wished to engage counsel and the case was adjourned until afternoon. When it was resumed Bowler had not been able to engage counsel and Mr. D. S. M. Frazer, manager of the motor department of the Horse Bazaar, was called. He told the Court that the accused had come to the Horse Bazaar in company with a salesman and had promised to pay $100 deposit on July 2 for the car. Later he had asked to take the car away and promised the whole sum on July 3, saying that owing to a business transaction he was unable to pay the deposit. Witness understood that the man's name was "Bowen" and that he was a broker.

Mr. G. Anovitch, salesman, gave evidence to the effect that he had arranged the sale to Bowler, whom he called "Bowen." He said that the accused had used this name when applying for a license, spotting it out in block letters. Accused had said he was a broker and had given his address as 16 Jinkee Road. Questioned by Mr. Maitland as to whether he would have let him have the car if he had known his name to be Norman W. Bowler the witness replied that he would not have, as he had read in the papers of a recent court case in which Bowler was involved.

After some further evidence the case was remanded until Monday.

Claims He Is The Oldest American In Philippines

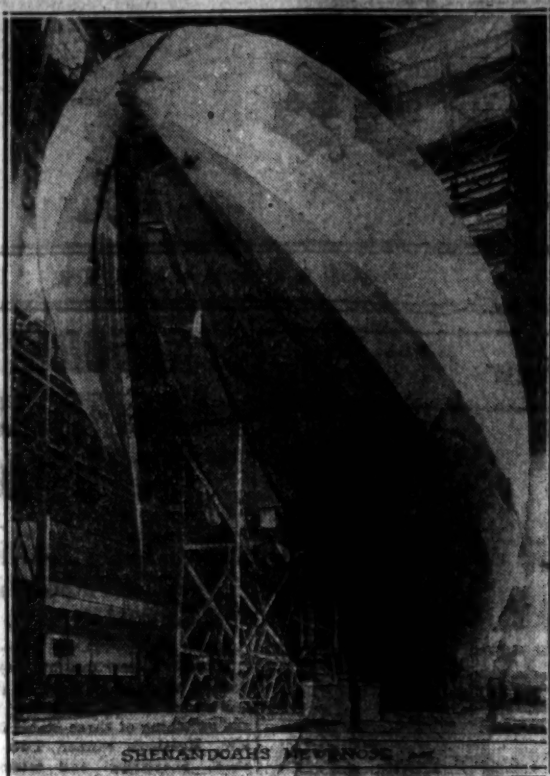

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Manila, June 25.—Captain Benjamin Franklin Taylor, who once was boxing champion of the United States, claims to be the American of longest residence in the Philippine Islands. For a number of years he has held an important position with a shipbuilding concern here. He enlisted in the navy at San Francisco in 1872 and was assigned to the U.S.S. Saratoga, on board which he made his first cruise.

After a number of years in the United States navy Taylor took his discharge and entered the Chinese navy as an officer, later participating in the Chinese-Japanese war in 1894. In 1895 he came to Manila where he was employed as a diver when Dewey's fleet entered Manila Bay in 1898.

Our Bremen Letter

A German American's Advice; Big Hamburg Fire; German Shipping; A Vain Appeal; Some Bremen Statistics; A New Stadium

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Bremen, Germany, May 25.—

To many people the attitude taken up by the German Nationalists seems the height of folly. It receives encouragement however, from Herman George Schaffner. This writer who used to contribute spirited articles to the European Press during his short life in Bremen, declares in a recent number of the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung that thunderous rage and just fury from Germany would impress the world far more deeply than cries for help and shrieks of despair. One is inclined to add that a touch of sweet reasonableness in the extreme parties might not come amiss.

BIG HAMBURG FIRE

A disastrous fire which might have had appalling results, broke out recently in the big warehouse in Hamburg belonging to Karstadt, Crown Cork Works and Lopez Cork store. The warehouse is about 150 meters long and all the Hamburg fire engines were mobilized to cope with the blaze. Some idea of the strength of the fire may be given by the fact that hose throwing from 1800 to 2000 liters a minute played on it for hours before getting it under. Enormous sheaves of blazing corks were thrown into the air the firemen doing their best to prevent these setting the Backhaus benzine warehouse on the opposite side of the canal ablaze. A tremendous explosion in the Lopez cork warehouse sent the roof several yards into the air whence it fell in flaming sheets to the ground. The fire is supposed to have started here, but the actual cause of its outbreak is unknown. Fortunately no lives were lost although the firemen were often in extreme peril.

GERMAN SHIPPING

Recently the Daily Telegraph asserted that Germany was building more tonnage than France, Italy and Norway combined and that her new mercantile fleet would be a dangerous competitor, since the half of German tonnage consists of motor vessels. The Weser Zeitung declares this statement to be exaggerated. It points out that the German tonnage launched in 1923 (358,273 B. reg. T.) represents about half the amount launched in Great Britain and Ireland in the same year (645,651 tons). While Germany in 1923 built 8 motor vessels of 41,772 tons, England launched in the same year 21 vessels with a total of 87,244 tons. The Weser

Zeitung adds that some of Germany's vessels are also built for reparation purposes.

A VAIN APPEAL

The appeal of the German Colonial Society to the League of Nations to intervene on behalf of the restoration of the German colonies has been ineffectual. The League Secretariat declares that the League is not competent to deal with the matter. It is to the signatories of the Versailles Treaty that such a protest must be addressed.

BREMEN STATISTICS

Some people distrust statistics, but it is not taken too seriously that they are quite interesting. It is interesting, for instance, to read in the Bremen statistics for March that over 6,000 people were seeking a dwelling of some kind or other. The dry communication that very few of these found what they sought may leave the statistician cold, but anyone who knows what house and flat-hunting means in these days, feels a wave of pity for the disappointed.

Another interesting statistical item has to do with the savings-bank. We learn that savings in February amounted to 454,480 gold marks and that in March they had reached the sum of 551,759 g.m. This means that the man in the street is regaining that confidence in saving which inflation destroyed. There is much bitterness among small investors at the way their savings disappeared under inflation. This is the tragedy of countless existences of the rank and file of the German population. After scraping and denying themselves for their old age, they saw the savings of a lifetime melt to nothing over night.

One more interesting statistical fact about Bremen is that lung disease takes a greater toll of the population than any other disorder. Of the 259 deaths in March, 1924, tuberculosis of the lungs accounted for 46 and inflammation of the lungs for the same number. The Bremen climate—damp, foggy and sunless—indeed no place for people with respiratory disease.

RECORD SERVICES

Recently Carl Schumann's printing and publishing establishment gave a festive gathering in honor of 82 members of the staff with long records of service with the firm. Of these eight had served 50-62 years, 13 from 40-50 years, 37 from 30-40 and 24 from 20-30 years. In an age when change is most emphatically our portion here these people seem like the inhabitants of a vanished world.

STADIUM FOR BREMEN

Bremen is keen on erecting a stadium on the Munte for all kinds of sports. In aid of the project the German Cycle and Motor Clubs recently arranged a festive evening in the Parkhaus. There was entertainment of the most varied kind. Past masters in cycling, gymnastics and boxing gave an enthusiastic audience delightful samples of their cunning. There was music, singing and dancing and champagne kept the spirits of the company at the wished-for temperature. Obviously there is money somewhere in Germany.

FELDEN'S BIRTHDAY

A Social Democratic pastor in Germany rounds almost a contradiction in terms: "Liberal" yes, even "Democrat" he may be and remains respectable, but for the average German, Social Democrat has almost disreputable associations. A Pastor a Social Democrat? Well, Bremen has one in Emil Felden, a successor of the liberal theologian Kalthoff in the Mortal Church. So well has he understood how to gain the respect of the town that even bourgeois papers—which have no love for Social Democrats—spare space for congratulating him on his 50th birthday. Felden is an active, eager nature, not hide-bound by shibboleths. In his novels and other works he has revealed ideas which have helped many. Nature like his are to the narrow Puritan type a stumblingblock. It is to minds with a wider horizon, minds striving to burst the bonds of tradition that Felden has a mission.

Street-Car Crews In Osaka Strike

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Osaka, July 3.—The street-car drivers and conductors went on strike here tonight.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Osaka, July 4.—The street-car strike is not authorized by the labor union. The cars were today run by overseers and men under training. At noon the number of cars operating was 150 against the usual 550. The police raided the car-sheds early this morning and arrested a number of the strike leaders. The Municipal Council is holding a meeting this afternoon to consider the measures to be taken. Recently there have been several suburban tramway strikes, the men demanding higher wages and better treatment on the ground that the companies are maintaining high dividends and high tariffs in spite of the lower cost of coal. The Hanshin strike between Osaka and Kobe has been on since June 28, but cars are running in greatly reduced numbers. There are signs that the strike is spreading to Kyoto.

The Scout Memorial Hospital motor-boat "Roanoke" was recently pirated and the four missionaries kidnapped.
Arriving at Chiu Ping Dr. Mewshaw approached the officials regarding the release of Mr. E. H. Carney who is still held by the robbers in the mountains. The Chiu Ping officials promise Mr. Carney's release within one week saying that they had raised $4,000, and the bandits were demanding $6,000. Interviewing General Shum Hung-ying before leaving Ping Lok, Dr. Mewshaw received promise that Mr. Carney would be released within three days.

Dr. Mewshaw confirms the death of the Rev. J. R. Cunningham at Kweilin on April 26. He was struck in the head by a stray rifle bullet fired from the mountain tops by the soldiers of General Shum Hung-ying. It is stated that it was impossible for the shot to have been intended for Mr. Cunningham. During the siege General Luk mounted old cannons on the walls and fired them continuously. General Shum fired 200 3-inch shells into the city. These are supposed to have been furnished by General Wu Peifu. Dr. Mewshaw exhibited one 3-inch shell that failed to explode but struck one of the girls in the Baptist Mission School killing her instantly.

During the siege, good order was maintained by General Luk inside the city and every consideration extended to the foreign missionaries. The opinion is expressed that the siege of Kweilin will continue for a long period of time. General Luk is hoping for help from Governor Ma Chi of Hunan and General Shum Hung-ying is receiving his ammunition from the Canton government through Wuchow.

There are now 15 foreign missionaries left in Kweilin. These are Bishop and Mrs. John Holden, Miss Pin, Mrs. Bacon and Miss Watkins of the Church Missionary Society, Dr. and Mrs. E. Dargan Smith and child, Mr. and Mrs. Bausum and Miss Macie Vie Summer of the American Southern Baptist Mission, Mr. Oldfield, Mr. and Mrs. Lump and Miss Oppelt of the Christian and Missionary Alliance.

FOOD NEARLY GONE
The food supply of the foreign missionaries in the beleaguered city of Kweilin, is about exhausted and while they are very desirous of getting out at the earliest possible moment, conditions are too uncertain and the risk too great at the present time for them to attempt it. It is highly necessary that relief and rescue be effected as quickly as possible. Dr. Mewshaw further reports that the sanitary conditions within the city of Kweilin are becoming very bad and an epidemic is likely to break out at any moment during the hot weather now being experienced.

Dr. Mewshaw reports that food supplies are very scarce in the city of Kweilin and the livelihood of the people depends upon the rice that is distributed once a day by the order of General Luk Wing-ting.

It took Dr. Mewshaw and his party 13 days to make the journey from Kweilin to Wuchow. Ordinarily at this season of the year when the water is high the trip can be made in three or four days. Dr. Mewshaw travelled in a very small row boat which was covered with bamboo mats and exhibited no Foreign Flag as he felt it would call attention to the fact that there were foreigners on board and tempt the robbers to meddle!

Guano Deposits Found In Islands

(Reuters Pacific Service)
Manila, June 25.—The discovery of guano deposits in the province of Cebu which are easily accessible by land and sea is expected to increase the use of fertilizer not only on sugarcane plantations but in other lines of agriculture. Experts in the use of fertilizers assert that with the opening of the Cebu deposits and the comparatively low cost of marketing the product agriculturists will be justified in increasing the use of guano.

It is estimated that 250,000 tons of guano are available in one locality of Cebu.

Comparison

It is obvious that where claims are made, comparison is inevitable. Comparison of the NEW Columbia Grafonola with ordinary gramophones has given it a place in music that no other gramophone has attained in so short a space of time. Comparison of the "NEW PROCESS" Records (without Scratch) with ordinary records reveals all the deficiencies of the latter.

To hear either one is to enjoy but one-half of a great achievement. To hear them in combination is to experience the sensation of a new experience. But to hear them in comparison with ordinary gramophones is to understand the enthusiasm of master musicians and music-lovers alike.

News Brevities

The British Women's Association is certainly to be congratulated upon adding to its personnel Miss Evelyn Heaton-Smith, who has just been appointed to the secretariat and who brings to her post a most interesting and varied experience. Holding the M.A. degree of London University, Miss Heaton-Smith spent 11 years in the staff of the Royal Library at Windsor Castle and during the war served as one of the secretaries to the Scottish Women's Hospital at Salonika, later on carrying out secretarial work in the Intelligence Department at G.H.Q. in Constantinople. On her return to England, Miss Heaton-Smith re-entered the Royal Service, acting as Secretary to H.R.H. Princess Mary at the time of her engagement and marriage and later on to H.R.H. the Duke of York when an additional secretary was needed in connection with his wedding. Miss Heaton-Smith, a keen lover of travel, came out to China a few months ago to stay with her brother, Mr. E. H. Heaton-Smith, who has lived in Shanghai for many years past.

Congratulations are tendered by the B.W.A. to Mrs. John Snodgrass, who recently resigned the secretariat, on her engagement to Mr. H. S. Wavell.

We are advised by the Japanese Consulate-General that, effective on and after October 1, 1924, the consular fee for a visa of a passport has been revised as follows: U.S.A. Y.20; Germany, Y. 15; France, Y.10; Mexico, Y.3; others, Y.4.

Dr. Harris E. Kirk, of Baltimore, a favorite Conference speaker in America, who is visiting various assemblies in China this summer, will begin his tour at Moukshan from July 16-21. It is expected that Dr. McKinnis will be at Moukshan from August 8-13. Dr. McKinnis was formerly Professor of the Philosophy of Religion at Syracuse and is now connected with the Bible Institute at Los Angeles.

Considerable excitement has been caused in Changsha by a band of 17 robbers who are said to have fled from the Wush district to Changsha. Three of them, two men and a woman, were arrested in the latter part of last month. On the person of one was three revolvers when he was apprehended and the other two had two and one, respectively. The other fourteen are causing terror not only in the country but in the city as well, according to word just received from our Changsha correspondent.

League of Nations places on its role in the League, it now transpires that the Chinese Government finds great difficulty in making good its membership dues. The Ministry of Finance, being unable to find the money for the purpose, is now complaining about the burden being too heavy for the Chinese Government. It is not yet known whether the Ministry of Finance will make a formal request to the Powers—or to the League of Nations—for a reduction of China's membership dues. Perhaps this has to be made by another department of the Government, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, if it is to be made at all, remarks the P. and T. Times.

For attempting to snatch a handbag from a Russian woman in Boundary Lane Thursday evening a Chinese was sentenced to one month's imprisonment at the Mixed Court yesterday.

The proprietor of an opium den at 54 Chekiang Road was given a month's imprisonment at the Mixed Court yesterday, while 11 smokers, arrested when the place was raided, failed to appear and forfeited $5 bail each.

Prison sentences and sizeable fines were imposed by the Mixed Court yesterday in the case of seven men and a woman who were charged with aiding and abetting in the sale of opium at 336 Avenue Edward VII. Two of the men go to jail for three months, and the woman for one month while five were fined $50 each. Considerable quantity of opium and money seized by the police was ordered confiscated.

The American Returned Students' Club will give a tea this afternoon at five o'clock at the clubhouse, 70 Nanking Road, in honor of the players and staff of the Shanghai Stage Society, which recently put on the English Comedy, "Lady Windermere's Fan," at the Olympic under the patronage of the club.

Dr. Carlton Lacy will preach at the morning service of Community Church, at the Columbia Country Club tomorrow and there will be special music by Signor Giulio Ronconi, accompanied at the piano by Mr. Koletz. The evening service, at 5.30 o'clock, will be addressed by Rev. A. N. Rowland at Union Church. During July and August the afternoon service will be a union service, Mr. Rowland taking the services for July and Rev. Drury for August.

There was a considerable stir of excitement near the corner of Jukong and North Szechuen Road Thursday night when a raiding party of Chapel police, assisted by soldiers, rounded up 14 alleged bandits in a gambling house and fired a number of shots before the capture was effected. No one was injured. The police had information that a party of armed men were in the gambling house. The men arrested will be prosecuted by the Chinese authorities.

Pirates Continue To Be Great Menace At Canton

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hongkong, June 29.—Because of disaffection in his army, General Tan Yenkal, commanding the Hunanese Army in Kwangtung, has tendered his resignation to Dr. Sun Yat-sen. Owing to lack of food supplies and ammunition from Canton a division of Hunanese under General Sun Hsueh-chin on the East River front recently concluded a temporary armistice with one of General Chen Chung-ming's divisions opposing it, thus causing General Tan no little embarrassment, including charges of turning traitor to Dr. Sun.

The possible withdrawal of the Hunanese, it is believed, will have no great effect on Dr. Sun's strength on the eastern front as he still has six other commanders in the field. No Cantonese troops are taking part in the operations on this front against Waichow, the forces being composed of Hunanese, Yunnanese, Kwangshites and Honanese.

The Yunnanese troops, who consider the North River districts as their special sphere of influence, are alarmed at the intention of General Hsu Chung-chi to detach his Cantonese troops there on the pretext that Northern troops are invading Kwangtung by way of Nanyang from Kiangsi.

In order that there may not be too many unofficial armed organizations in Kwangtung, the Civil Governor has refused to sanction the provision for merchants of armed escorts for their goods coming into Canton by land or sea. Transport of goods is greatly endangered by brigandage and piracy and it is stated that there are still 25 multinational gunboats at large, interfering with lawful trade. Most of the low-boats, plying between Canton and the ports of Tungku, Heungshan and the Sze-yap districts, have suspended service pending more effective protection against pirates. This interference with trade they marched through the streets. After a period of three months from July 1 all real estate, the owners of which have failed to present their title-deeds for inspection and paid the fee of three percent of the value, will be confiscated, according to an official announcement. It is understood that a majority of property owners have not yet taken notice of the order. The 72 villages south of the city in Honan have made a joint declaration that every lot within their jurisdiction is a private holding and that they will oppose any who treat their property as public lands. It is not believed in Canton that the matter will be pushed too far by the officials. On a protest by the citizens of Panshan recently, Dr. Sun's men returned more than 200 buildings and grounds to their former owners.

Defering to the request of the Canton Press Association, the Chief of Police has finally withdrawn his censor's stamp from the publishing offices. On June 26, the editors made a joint declaration refusing further to submit their copy to the censors and themselves assuming full responsibility for what appeared in print. The reason for the declaration was that the censors had over-stepped their authority, which at the beginning was to suppress all news of military operations unfavourable to Dr. Sun. Later, that went so far as editing and colouring news, and permitting some newspapers and forbidding others to insert identical reports.

The much postponed grand review of the Kwangtung Provincial Gendarmerie, the Canton Police and the Canton Merchants Volunteer Corps by Dr. Sun finally took place on the North Parade Ground on June 29. The foreign Consuls, local officials and leading citizens were invited to be present. Some 600 volunteers took part in the review and the presentation of colors to their corps. The streets were decorated with flags, and crowds cheered the volunteers as

Stabbed For Declining To Join 'Brotherhood'

Exhibiting a stab wound in the leg, a Chinese named Tsung Tuh-plan appeared in the Mixed Court yesterday to prosecute a shopkeeper named Liao Ching-hai.

"He wanted to form a 'Brotherhood of 36,'" stated the complainant, "each member to pay him $1. When I refused to join he called me to a teashop in Kashing Road, started a fight and stabbed me."

"He stabbed himself," declared the accused. "He has been molesting my wife and I invited him to the teashop to discuss the matter. There he started a fight, knifed himself in the leg and then laid this charge against me." Liao was sent to jail for two months.

Shanghai Wins Annual Game From Navy Team, But Loses To Japanese

Opening Contest Fairly Easy, But Final Provides Numerous Thrills; Many Brilliant Plays Feature Double-Header

There was lots of action out at the Race Course yesterday afternoon, when the "Gallopers" split even in a double-header, taking the special Fourth of July races from an All-Navy team by a 3 to 2 score and losing by a 5 to 2 count in the tilt with the crack South Manchurian Railway team.

But most of the action was furnished by the big holiday crowd and most of it centered around one Hirota, an alleged umpire who called ten like his spectacles were encrusted with the dust of centuries. So far as the home boys were concerned there was mighty little action that resembled baseball and in the latter contest, particularly, they put up their poorest display of the year, including perfect absence of co-ordination in fielding, weak pitching and absolute futility with the stick.

Following the first game, Judge Cornell S. Franklin, acting as Master of Ceremonies, presented to the Shanghai team the handsome silver cup which by virtue of their victory will repose in the American Club until another "Glorious Fourth" rolls around. Shanghai's win yesterday broke a tie in the number of victories in contests for the cup, both Navy and Shanghai teams having won the cup four times in the eight previous years in which it has been contested for. The trophy was received by Captain Jerry Thatch with a modest speech that nobody heard and everybody applauded.

POOR COMBINATION

Griffith was on the mound for the sailors and apparently was disheartened by the breaking up of his Elcano team and the substitution of a misfit combination drafted from that ship and the Hubbard, for he had little on the ball, yielding seven solid blows in the seven innings to which the contest was limited.

Shanghai also had a make-shift combination in the field, but the guys were swiftly yanked when a situation developed where runs looked possible and the regulars were shoved in to do the heavy work.

The locals tallied first, shoving over two counters in the fourth. "Buck" Taylor singled with one out, took third on Wall's one-base blow and tallied on Howland's infield out. With Wall on second, Kingman was inserted to pinch hit for Bristow and crashed a two-bagger to right center, scoring the runner. Tavares singled, but he and Kingman were left when Maloney, hitting for Wynne, struck out.

The "goats" evened the count in the fifth of the fifth. With one out Soulat drew a walk. Brothers fanned, but Soulat scored and Norgren was safe at second when "Buck" Taylor ran over into center field and tried to take a high fly out of the hands of "Hudford" Taylor, although the latter was all set for the catch, dropping the ball.

Shanghai came back in the sixth. Tinkham was safe at first on an error by Bouvier, went to second on a perfect sacrifice bunt by Bullard and scored when "Buck" Taylor drove out his second single. Wall also hit a second time, but both runners were left when Howland popped up weakly.

LOSE TO JAPANESE

The locals started off auspiciously in their game with the Japanese, Bullard crashing out a justy triple to open the affair and scoring on Howland's infield out.

In the fifth the "Gallopers" got their other tally on a single and steal at second by Tavares and a one-base smack by Bullard.

Three errors by Howland in a single inning allowed the Japanese to even matters in the third. Bill muffed Hokida's grounder to start. Sanada rapped another one down at the third baseman and he handled it perfectly, tossing the pitcher out at first, but on a beautiful return peg by Kingman muffed the ball and allowed Hokida to score. Masuda fled to second. Howland made his third break next in a run-up play between second and third when he made a futile grab at a ball, thrown by Bullard to catch the runner heading back for third and just deflected it enough so that it struck "Hudford" Taylor square in the pit of the stomach and put him down for the count.

Another Japanese run came over in the fifth on two singles and a sacrifice and in the following inning "Hudford" blew up as high as the Fourth of July bombs that were being set off. Iwata singled and Abeshi walked, both advancing on Tamera's sacrifice bunt. "Hudford" allied the paths by passing Hokida and then forced over the tally by issuing a free ticket to Nakazawa.

Clair took up the burden at this point and he had little of his usual stuff, although errors figured largely in the two runs for which the visitors nicked him, one of them his own, chalked up when he hit a man going to first in the middle of the back with a peg to Kingman. Hokida singled to left and "Buck" Taylor let the ball roll through him, the runner crossing the plate.

To clinch the contest the Manchus put over another in the final frame on three successive singles.

WILLIAMS, U. S. TENNIS STAR, IS PUT OUT OF PLAY

American Loses To Brilliant Frenchman, La Coste

(Reuter's Service)

Wimbledon, July 3.—The weather was cool and cloudy and there was a moderate attendance at the resumption of the Lawn Tennis Championships today.

Lacoste opposed Williams in the first semifinal. The Frenchman's positioning and footwork were superior. He took the first set 6-1. Williams frequently returning into the net. In the second set the American improved, driving and volleying delightfully. He won the set 6-3. Lacoste led 4-2 in the third set, when rain interrupted the game. The match was resumed later, and Lacoste won 6-1.

3-6, 6-3, 6-3. The attendance was sparse after the interval. Williams made a great effort to retrieve his position, but Lacoste was tenacious and drove very accurately and hard, while the American made an unusual number of double faults.

Borotra won from Raymond in the other semifinal without having to extend himself. Raymond was plucky, but was handicapped by an injured ankle. The score was 6-2, 6-4, 7-5.

In the semifinals of the Ladies' Doubles, Mrs. Covell and Miss McKane beat Mrs. Lambert Chambers and Mrs. Shepherd-Barron 6-4, 3-6, 6-4, and Miss Wills and Mrs. Wightman beat Miss Goss and Mrs. Jessup 6-5, 5-4.

South Africans All Out For 299

(Reuter's Service)

Bradford, July 3.—The match between Yorkshire and the South Africans was resumed today in dull and threatening weather before a small attendance. The wicket was good. There was a ten minutes' interruption for rain before lunch and rain fell during luncheon. The South Africans were all out for 299. Nourse made 65 in 90 minutes by magnificent driving and powerful cutting. He hit eleven 4s. Taylor made 79 in 175 minutes. He hit ten 4s. He started cautiously but afterwards batted brightly. The innings took 4 hours and 35 minutes. Macaulay took 6 wickets for 66. Rain then fell and there was no play after tea.

KID LEWIS HOLDS WELTERWEIGHT TITLE IN LONDON

Champion Defeats Johnny Brown, Of Hamilton, On Points

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 3.—In a boxing contest tonight at the Albert Hall for the Welterweight Championship of Britain Kid Lewis, the holder, beat Johnny Brown of Hamilton on points.

Brown was doing most of the attacking in the early rounds and doing well at long range work. There was a good deal of clinching and Lewis was warned for holding. The Londoner improved from the fifth round and scored with a good variety of blows. He established a lead on points at the half-way stage. In the eleventh round he got home several lefts to the face and a right swing to the jaw. There were several sharp rallies towards the end. Lewis won by a narrow margin.

British Paper Applauds China Stand On Loans

(Reuters Service)
London, July 4.—Commenting on the Chinese Government's decision to resume full service of loans, the Manchester Guardian says that the action of certain Governments in continuing from motives of self-interest to turn a blind eye on the Treaty concluded four years ago is not an inspiring example of financial morality and it is a good thing that China for her part has now seen fit to bring the episode to an end.

Sun And Chen Are Still At Outs

(Reuters Pacific Service)
Peking, July 4.—The Chen Pao publishes a special telegram from Hongkong, dated June 30, which reports that the efforts to bring about an agreement between Dr. Sun Yat-sen and General Chen Ching-ming have ended in failure. The message says that at a conference at Haifeng General Chen supported the establishment of a provincial administration at Shanghai, where General Yen Chu has established the office of Civil Governor, while General Lin has established himself as full at Kweishin. General Hung Chow-ha meanwhile has established his headquarters as Military Commission at Swatow. Some details in connection with these posts remain to be completed, and then the Central Government will be informed of the assumption of office of the officials appointed by mandate for Kwangtung last month.

Edna Wallace Hopper, rejuvenated actress, announced in Los Angeles, that she is soon to marry a British Army officer in China. She declined to give his name, declaring she had "lost a couple that way." Sir Adam Beck, chairman of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, Canada, is leading the attack on the right of Chicago to take so much water from Lake Michigan for the sanitary district of Chicago, said to be an encroachment on the rights of Canada and the State of New York. It is estimated the diverted water causes a loss of 500,000 electric horsepower. The Duchess of Westminster, wife of England's richest peer, is said to be seeking a divorce in London because her husband refused her permission to use his London palace for a charity ball. Edward Payson Weston, 56-year-old world famous pedestrian, was shot in the leg and seriously beaten by a mob in his lonely home near Kingston, N. Y. Mystery surrounded the attack.

Workers' Leisure Hours Subject At Conferenc

(French Wireless through Reuters)
Paris, July 3.—The International Labor Conference today continued the discussion of the recommendation with regard to the utilization of workers' hours of leisure. The Note presented by the committee considers that the adoption of the 8-hour day convention was intended to guarantee workers' leisure hours in which they can apply themselves to developing their physical and intellectual capacities and that such an effort is of high value for the progress of civilization. Reasoned employment of leisure may even increase powers of production and make the 8-hour day all the more efficacious. Whilst taking into account local customs and circumstances, the committee considers it useful to fix methods which already appear as the most efficacious and to recommend the principles and regulations under the following five heads:

- 1.—With a view to the preservation of leisure, the conference recommends fixing, by free agreement between employers and employed, measures to prevent search for supplementary remunerative work.
- 2.—The development of individual hygiene and the fight against alcohol and tuberculosis, evil associations, and gambling.
- 3.—Favoring the development of harmony in workers' families and the creation of comfortable and cheap dwellings.
- 4.—The conference recommends improvement on household life and development of sport amongst the workers. Educational works can be subsidised by the States.
- 5.—The conference recommends a plan of active propaganda in favor of rational use of leisure hours.

P. I. Have Lowest Death Rate Since Records Were Kept

(Reuters Pacific Service)
Manila, June 25.—The death rate in the Philippine Islands during the year 1923 was 17.5 per thousand which is the lowest ever recorded, according to a report of the Philippine Health Service. The 1923 death rate was eight percent lower than that of 1922 and fourteen percent lower in 1921.

The report states it is now apparent from the records on file that following a decrease in marriages in 1923, a falling off in the number of births will be evident when the figures are complete. There has been a corresponding decrease in the infant mortality rate toward which the regular Government has exerted much effort.

Health officials attribute the decrease in the death rate to increased efficiency of the health organization, improved sanitation of populous centers and increased interest in health education of the masses.

Mr. and Mrs. Public,

We were extremely fortunate to secure the Great Universal Jack Dempsey series of two-reel knockouts, each story complete in itself, an known as the "Fight and Win" pictures written especially for Jack Dempsey by Gerald Beaumont. The brilliant supporting cast includes: Hyden Stevenson (of the "Leather Pushers"), Carmelita Geraghty, Chuck Reisner (of "The Pilgrim"), and Ester Ralston.

The first two two-reel rounds of Jack Dempsey's million dollars knockouts will be presented in a few days at our St. George's Open Air Cinema 217 Bubbling Well Road together with Reginald Denny's latest super-feature, "The Reckless Age" which will be released in America on August 17, 1924, or a full month after its presentation at our theatres.

Other features that will be shown at the St. George's Open Air Cinema this month include: "Beautiful and Damned" with Marie Prevost. "Beyond the Rocks," with Rudolph Valentino and Gloria Swanson. "Signal Tower," this is one of the greatest dramas ever shown, and a presentation of exceedingly high merit. Will be released in America August 3, 1924. "Merry Go Round," "Trailing African Wild Animals," "Sporting Youth," with Reginald Denny and Laura La Plante.

In August and September we will show even greater super-features than the above. We are in a Position to show this summer the greatest films ever presented in one theatre, as Mr. Hertzberg, the proprietor of the Apollo and St. George's Cinemas, is now on his way to America, where he will secure absolutely the best that there is in pictures for the coming season.

Very truly yours,
Management

BOBBIE AND HIS PA

BY WM. F. KIRK

Pa, I saw my dad last nite, what is our Conduck?

Our way of be-having, Bobbie, sed Pa. Why do you ask?

Beekaus our teacher sed that it was our Conduck with made our Success in life, I sed. She sed that we shaped our few-cher by our Conduck.

Yure teacher is partly rite, Bobbie, sed Pa. & partly rong. There have been sum men wien made grate Success in sum ways, Bobbie, sed Pa. but there Conduck was not what it shud be, sed Pa. Blon & Burns & Shakespeer was all grate men, Bobbie, sed Pa. but thay were gay dogs with wild habits, sed Pa. & even I, sed Pa, tho I have climed the ladder, if I may say so, sed Pa, can-not say that my Conduck was always like the Driven Shok, Bobbie, sed Pa.

You must not leed Bobbie to think that it is grate or nobel to have careless Conduck, sed Ma. My deer old father used to say that Verchew was its own reward, sed Ma.

The old gent red that in a Coppy Book, sed Pa. I doant think he ever gave it a good trile, sed Pa. That will do, sed Ma. You know how X-asperated I get wen you refer to my deer old daddy's weck points, sed Ma. He had a big & nobel hart wich made up for everything careless wich he ever did, sed Ma.

I suppose so, sed Pa. He wasent a bad old skate at that. Old state, old skate, how dare you? sed Ma.

Pa laffed. It always amewas me, sed Pa. to see how easy I can sit yure goat speaking earless about yure old gent, sed Pa.

It is not gentel-mannerly of you to do such, sed Ma.

I guess you are rite at that, sed Pa. & I will try never to do it again.

I never speak thus of yure parents, sed Ma. I never aler yure father.

A lot my old gent wud care, sed Pa, even he be wien in the land of the livving. There was one gent that was ab-solute hard boiled, sed Pa. I never seen anything make him fitch.

You never seen, what kind of grammar is that? sed Ma. I suppose, that was the way yure father talked.

I will ademit that my old gent was awful ruff with his grammar, sed Pa. He never had any skooling, Pa sed, he was a diamond in the ruff, Pa sed.

Ruff is rite, sed Ma. I used to wish he wud let the barter shav him if he cudent shav hisself, sed Ma.

You & Pa both give me a pane, I sed. You are all the time talking about each others parents. How wud you like it if I talked about you? I sed.

On deep re-flection, Bobbie, sed Pa, I believe you are rite. Wife, sed Pa, our little chile has teched us a grate lesson.

I guess little chiles must be good for sumthing, after all.

Kiangsi Tuli Is Seeking Alliance With Chekiang

(Dah Tong News Bureau)

Nanchang, July 4.—Tuchun Tsai Chun-hsun has telegraphed to Peking and Loyang, asking them to approach General Lu Yang-hsiang of Chekiang with the view to forming a Chekiang-Kiangsi alliance and securing the return of a quantity of ammunition seized by General Chuang Tse-ping, and Yang Hua-chao at Yuehau.

The exportation of rice has been prohibited by Tuchun Tsai Chun-hsun in view of the flood in his province.

MEN AND WOMEN IN NEWS OF THE DAY.

GEORGE F. BAKER, MRS. KATHERINE DOREMUS BENJAMIN, PRINCE RUPPRECHT, and GEORGE F. BAKER.

George F. Baker, multi-millionaire New York banker, has given $5,000,000 for the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration, where stress will be laid upon the teaching of business ethics. Ignatz Seipel, Austrian Chancellor, was shot down and seriously wounded in the Vienna railway station by Karl Jaeger, who then shot himself. During a celebration in Munich 38,000 Bavarian war veterans hailed ex-Crown Prince Rupprecht, former commander of a group of German armies, as their king. The ex-gilt Mrs. Katherine Doremus Benjamin, divorced wife of Park Benjamin, of New York City, brother-in-law of the late Enrico Caruso, once a leader in New York society, has had to stand society for a $25 a week job as a sewing girl. She recently had her husband jailed for failure to pay back attorney.

Our Belfast Letter

The Boundary. Deadlock. Shipyard Wages Dispute. Marketing Of Eggs

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Belfast, May 19.—The Boundary Question has reached an absolute deadlock. Many speeches are made concerning it, many meetings are held, and many arguments are advanced, but no progress is being made in the settlement of this question which keeps the whole of Ireland in agitated suspense. On Wednesday a meeting of M.P.s was held at Westminster at which a printed statement explaining Ulster's position in the controversy, was circulated. Briefly the statement is this:

The act of 1920 was in all essentials an agreed measure as between Ulster and Great Britain, and is regarded by Ulster as a treaty and a charter, and as a final settlement of the Irish question as far as she is concerned. In her eyes it is as binding as any arrangement made by man can be. The boundary line of the six counties was definitely agreed to by Ulster and by the British Government. That agreement was embodied by the act, and Ulster claims that the British Government has no right, moral or otherwise, to alter that line without her consent. Southern Ireland never put the 1920 act into operation, and a state of anarchy reigned in that part of the country for many months after the passing of the act. Then came the so called truce and negotiations for a treaty. Ulster was asked if she wished to take part in these negotiations, but she refused, on the ground that the dispute was between the British Government and Southern Ireland, and that Ulster had no right or business to be present at these negotiations. It was clearly understood, however, between Mr. Lloyd George and Sir James Craig that if at any time any proposal was made which might jeopardise or affect Ulster's rights or interests, she should be called into, and she given every opportunity of safeguarding her interests.

ASK CONSIDERATION

No Englishman can read this statement without feeling some resentment. The sentence "Ulster claims that the British Government has no right, moral or otherwise, to alter that line without her consent" seems to imply that Britain is anxious to rob Ulster of her land. But does Britain seek to alter the boundary line without Ulster's consent? All that Britain asks is that Ulster appoint a representative to consider the question. As the final paragraph of the statement contends, "Ulster is being given every opportunity to safeguard her interests."

If Sir James Craig will not appoint a representative, then that is a different matter. Why does Sir James refuse to appoint a representative? It is the only chance of settling the matter in a satisfactory manner.

At a recent meeting of the Belfast District Committee of the Engineering and Shipbuilding Trades Federation, it was decided to press a claim for an increase of £1 which was previously put forward in connection with the local shipyard wage. The firms have made an offer of a restoration of 50 percent of the last cut in the wages, which was 10s., but it has not been met at all favorably.

Many of the workmen are being compelled by the Labor Exchange officials to accept work on the Clyde and in Birkenhead, refusals being checked by the stoppage of their benefit money. It is claimed that the wages these men earn across the water are inadequate to support wives and families in Belfast, and it was decided to appoint a deputation to interview the Minister of Labor and request him to exempt married men from having to accept work in these conditions.

The Marquis of Londonderry speaking in the House of Commons of the Parliament of Northern Ireland last week said the rehabilitation of the agricultural industry had been a very pressing question since the war. It was estimated that in Northern Ireland the number of persons engaged in agriculture was 212,000, as against 204,000 engaged in all other industries, including 63,000 engaged in linen, and 35,000 in shipbuilding. The computed output from agriculture was £20,000,000, from linen £17,000,000, and from shipbuilding £9,000,000. The farming community had had the full sympathy of the Government during those very trying times in Northern Ireland, and some relief had been afforded by a special grant of £125,000.

He went on to speak of the Government's help in establishing agricultural education, and various improvement systems. Few people, he believed, had even an approximate idea of the value of the egg industry in Ulster. Not only was Ulster self-supporting, but from Northern ports, eggs to the value of £3,000,000 annually were dispatched to Great Britain. Such, however, was the possibility of the industry that there was no reason whatever why that very substantial source of income should not be increased.

They had many natural advantages in the Six Counties. The climate and the soil were particularly suitable. The Irish egg was not in point of quality excelled by any supplied to the British market by other countries. He said a great deal more, about Ulster's chances to increase her egg output, and explained that the present marketing system was very bad. At the conclusion, a bill for an improvement in this direction was approved. Its object being to "place the Ulster egg in a more honored position on the market."

To Cut 3 Days Off Philippines--- U. S. Mail Time

(Reader's Pacific Service)
Manila, June 18.—A decrease of some three days in the time of transporting a portion of the mails from the Philippine Islands to the United States will result through an arrangement just concluded between the Bureau of Posts of the Philippines and the Ministry of Communications of Japan. The mails leaving the Philippines for the United States will be transferred from steamers to the Japan Railway at Moji or Kobe, taken to Yokohama by train and there reshipped by steamer, whenever possible. This route can be employed only when a steamer is available at Yokohama. By sending the mails by rail through Japan the two days' stop of steamers at Kobe and a twenty-four stop at Yokohama can be overcome, provided a steamer is available at Yokohama when the mails arrive. Mr. Jose Topacio, director of the Bureau of the Philippines, also in correspondence with the postal authorities of Siberia regarding a plan to send Philippine mails for Europe by the Siberian Railroad instead of by steamer through Suez. It now requires thirty to forty days for mail to reach Europe by steamer, and Director Topacio hopes to cut something like three from this schedule if arrangements can be made to despatch them by rail through Siberia.

Trotsky Ridicules Attlee's Speech In The Commons

(Reader's Service)
Moscow, July 4.—The Rosta Agency publishes a declaration by M. Trotsky ridiculing a recent statement in the British House of Commons by Major Attlee, the Under-Secretary of State for War, that the strength of the Red Army was 1,300,000. M. Trotsky says that the strength of the Red Army is now under 600,000 and that the Soviet will attempt further reduction. If Mr. Ramsay MacDonald and M. Herriot take the initiative in reduction of armaments in Europe the Soviet will give them their entire support.

NEW DEVICES ARRIVE FOR MAKING RAW SILK TESTS

Part Of The Program
To Standardise All
Measurements

MEANS PROGRESS

Lack Of Uniformity Is Hurting World
Market

The movement for a universal standard for classifying raw silk is resulting in the importation into China and Japan of various machines and apparatus for testing the quality of this product. The appearance of this equipment, nearly all of which is made in America, is contributing toward the desired result. Both corporations and individuals are engaged in manufacturing and marketing these appliances.

In America there is about 50 laboratories engaged in testing raw silk for quality. Unfortunately almost every laboratory has a slightly different method for testing or interpreting the same into grades with as much as four grades variation in the result.

Several years ago, the Japanese reeling and inspectors said to the American buyers of raw silk, "Tell us what you want and we will produce it." It has been a complicated and difficult matter for the American buyers to tell the Japanese exactly what they want. The progress toward standard tests is making it easier to answer the question.

DIFFERENT METHODS

There seem to be two main reasons for the different methods of testing raw silk now in use. 1. There has been no recognized standard in the primary market and no recognized authority on the subject in the world, so that the work had to go through a formative period. 2. The inspectors have, through a number of years of training, acquired a knowledge of the various qualities of raw silk, mostly by the sense of sight and touch. The reports they have received from the manufacturers have been mostly hearsay, and while they had to be confirmed several times to get at the facts, it has given them, though a number of years, a general knowledge of the qualities of raw silk required to produce a specific fabric.

The official testing house, the U. S. Testing Co., Inc., which has its Far Eastern headquarters in Shanghai, is taking the lead in standardizing the testing methods and otherwise improving the quality of raw silk. Representatives of this organization are doing a great deal of valuable field work in the Orient.

The manufacturers of raw silk commodities in America generally classify their product into two grades, viz.: First and second. As in the case of raw silk, there is no standard method followed in grading, and it is largely controlled by what the buyer will accept as first quality, and buy at a reduced price as second.

TRADE IS CRITICAL

In the buyers' market the trade is very critical and accepts only a few class articles as first; but in the sellers' market they overlook many imperfections in order to get the article desired; even then the manufacturer always is limited in that which he can pass on to a customer.

As a rule, seconds are disposed of at a low price, and consequently, to manufacture properly, one must sell his first at a price high enough to cover the loss on the seconds. When the seconds are too numerous, in order to make a profit, the first frequently are priced so high that sales are affected and all interested parties suffer.

It appears, then, that those responsible for the supply of raw silk in America follow the same tactics in grading and selling raw silk. During a sellers' market there is not only a lowering of all grades of raw silk, but also higher prices. These two conditions coming at the same time affect the manufacturer in a number of ways, as follows:

A higher price of raw silk increases cost of production and means a larger loss due to seconds; and greater fabricating loves, claims, rejections and cancellation of orders.

There are certain lines of commodities that cannot be manufactured today because no raw silk can be purchased that is sufficiently even to produce them perfectly enough to sell at a profit. One of the appealing features of artificial silk is its evenness. The increasing use of the artificial product has stimulated the efforts of the raw silk dealers to settle upon a universal standard for classification.

BRITISH SEIZURE IS VALID IN THE UNITED STATES

Judge Hand Upholds Right Of England's Public Trustee
To Stock

New York, June 7.—Federal Judge Learned Hand made a decision yesterday establishing the validity in America of seizures made in England of German-owned stock certificates registered in the names of British agents during the war. Attorneys in the case said that the matter probably would be taken to the United States Supreme Court, as the disposition of certificates aggregating many millions of dollars in value depended on the decision.

The action was brought against the United States Steel Corporation and the Public Trustee of England and Wales by two German banks, Direction der Disconto-Gesellschaft and Bank fur Handel und Industrie. Final hearing had been held on an agreed statement. Each bill was filed to establish the plaintiff's title to 160 shares of stock of the United States Steel Corporation, which that company had refused to recognize because of the claims of the Public Trustee of England and Wales. Judge Hand's decision directed that title be given to the Public Trustee.

John Wilson Brown was counsel for the plaintiffs. The Public Trustee was represented by Frederic R. Conder, Colonel Howard Thayer Kingsbury and Mahlon B. Doling. The Steel Corporation was represented by William Averell Brown.

At the outbreak of the World War, said the agreed statement of facts, the plaintiffs each owned 160 shares of Steel, registered in the company's books as being held by brokers resident in England. When war began the British Trading With the Enemy act established the Public Trustee and empowered him to seize German property in England. In consequence, the certificates of stock were taken over by the Public Trustee.

"The question is whether the title of the Public Trustee by capture is good against enemy owners when the property consists in a New Jersey corporation, when the registered shareholders had endorsed the certificates in blank, and when the certificates had been physically reduced to possession in the United Kingdom by the Public Trustee," said the Court.

"The plaintiffs argue that we should not recognize captures made in the United Kingdom until it appears that that nation extends a like recognition to captures made here. The point depends upon a misunderstanding of the effect of the case of Hilton v. Guyot. Whatever may be thought of that decision, the Court certainly did not mean to hold that an American court was to recognize no obligations or duties arising elsewhere until it appeared that the sovereign of the locus reciprocally recognized similar obligations, existing here. That doctrine, I am happy to say, is not a part of American jurisprudence.

"It is true that a judgment creates a debt, and is indeed an instance of the general principle. But it is a most special instance, and no generalization may properly be drawn from it. A judgment involves the direct action of a court against individuals, and offers more excuse for national jealousy than when the obligation arises for laws of general application. So far as I know, the doctrine of reciprocity has been confined to foreign judgments alone and has no application to situations of this sort. Moreover, it is a doctrine in supposed protection of the nationals of the forum. On what theory citizens of a foreign State may invoke it I cannot understand. These plaintiffs are German citizens, and it would scarcely lie in their mouth to complain, even had it affirmatively appeared that the courts of England would recognize similar captures made of shares under our own statutes. Much less must it be shown that they would so recognize them.

"The Public Trustee may take a decree declaring that the plaintiffs are not entitled to the shares at issue or to be recognized as shareholders, and directing the United States Steel Corporation upon surrender of the proper certificates to register him as shareholder and to issue appropriate certificates to him in evidence thereof."

China Cotton

Messrs. A. B. Rosenfeld and Son, Inc., state in their current report:

Since our last report, the cotton market has witnessed a succession of firm markets, due, in a large measure, to the attitude and operations of the local bull clique, and values were carried 50 to 100 points above the level ruling about a week ago. At the close, however, Mid-Americans declined some 100 points for spot and 91 points for May, in consequence of which our market responded accordingly.

Crop news has been generally favorable, but there are some complaints of lack of rain in some sections, while it would seem that other territories have had too much rain. These may be only the usual vicissitudes of every summer.

With the uncertainties of the new crop and the uncertainties of the prospects of universal trade, it is almost impossible to arrive at any definite opinion of the market in the near future.

SPUNT & CO.'S REPORT

Messrs. J. Spunt and Co. state in their report:

Spinners' takings during the past week, though small, did in no way affect prices on spot deliveries and the rates on old crop stocks, which is becoming more and more scarce, will not show any signs of weakening until the near approach of the new season crop. However, as regards new crop deliveries the tendency at the moment is downward, by reason of the reports in general from the various cotton-growing districts, indicating favorable weather conditions and pointing to a fairly large yield for the coming season, provided intermittent reasonable weather continues to prevail during the next two months.

A further reason for expectations of lower prices on the local staple is the decline now being registered in yarn values and the shutting down of some mills for lengthy periods, while other mills are making further curtailments in their spindleage. Furthermore the decline in Mid-Americans and Indians may be expected to influence the local markets to a more or less extent.

Tone of the market: Easier.

The Anti-American Feeling
In Japan

ACCORDING to the news reports from Japan published in the newspapers here this week, Japan registered a "nation-wide protest" on July 1, the day for putting into effect the new American Immigration Law, which contains a clause prohibiting the immigration into America of Japanese laborers or agriculturists. Resolutions condemning the new law were passed by both houses of the Diet, and, in addition, mass-meetings were held, pilgrimages were made to national shrines and posters and hand-bills were distributed in Tokyo and elsewhere. In addition to the above manifestations, an unidentified Japanese entered the grounds of the American Embassy, climbed the flagpole, cut down the American flag and succeeded in escaping before the police arrived, but was later arrested and the flag returned to the Embassy.

In view of the fact that Chinese bandits have used the American flag for a target on several recent occasions in interior China without notice being taken of the matter by the American Government, we trust nothing will be done in respect to the flag incident in Japan. It is but natural, we suppose, that there should be demonstrations in Japan on the day selected for putting the new law into effect in view of the wide consideration which the matter has received in the Japanese Press, but, on the other hand, it is gratifying to note that most of the responsible Japanese papers are now counselling moderation in respect to the agitation led by the radical elements to boycott American products.

The Jiji, one of the leading papers, it is interesting to note, states that "it does not add to the reputation of Japan, as a great nation, to take a leaf out of the book of Chinese students and boycott American goods." "Such mischievous action," the same paper adds, "only tends to injure the Japanese case and is least calculated to promote a satisfactory solution of the Japanese-American problem."

The Japan Chronicle, the liberal British paper published at Kobe, has made a special effort to cover all phases of the present Japanese sentiment in respect to the American Immigration law and calls attention to the fact that the Japanese paper which has conducted the most sensational attack on the United States is the Yamato, "which will be remembered as the leader in the anti-British campaign of 1916." The same editorial in the Chronicle states that "the most striking feature of the boycott has been the passionate eagerness of those who had something to gain by it." For this reason, American moving picture films were first to be singled out for attack by the boycotters. Although there are several native companies in Japan which manufacture excellent films, the American film has had the lead in that country, as elsewhere, owing to superior technique. The movie-houses put up a fight against the boycott on the grounds that they could not quickly cancel their contracts with the American producing companies, and as a result the date for the stopping of the American films was put well into the future. Now if it is to be enforced at all, says the editor of the Chronicle, "it will be through sheer propaganda of the interested parties—not from any popular indignation against America."

Another American product which has been singled out for attack is the gramophone record, and in this case, "here too there is a Japanese substitute which can be pushed if the drum is whacked sufficiently loudly." Soaps, perfumes and cosmetics are also receiving the attention of the Japanese patriots, and this leads the Chronicle to remark that "As for things which are not obviously American, Japan is already committed to taking $150,000,000 worth of reconstruction materials on the long credit represented by the recent loan, and a big order with the Westinghouse Company has just been recorded. Doubtless other countries could supply Japan's needs, but at the present time America is the only country that can afford sufficient credit. A victorious campaign by Japanese interests might cause shopkeepers to keep American groceries at the back of the shop, but a manufacturer who needs an American machine for his work or who needs American iron and steel for his raw material cannot afford to listen to the patriots, and would only be doing his country an injury if he did. The crowd does not generally see the really important articles of commerce, and when it does, it has to shut its eyes to the fact, as when the patriots scour round the town in American motor cars to tell everybody that they must not use American goods—surely one of the most absurd features in a campaign that is ninety-nine per cent. humbug in any case."

That the views of the Chronicle are also shared by leading Japanese papers is also indicated by translations appearing in the columns of the Chronicle. The Yomiuri says:

"The prominent feature of Japanese industry is the production of luxuries, and it is particularly noteworthy that America is Japan's best customer. In return for the export of these luxuries, she imports from America goods which are most necessities of life, such as iron and raw cotton. This fact shows clearly which side is destined to suffer in a larger measure from boycott movements mutually carried out."

The Chuo also denounces the mischievous actions on the part of anti-American agitators and says:

"The proper course for the Japanese people to pursue in such circumstances is to take a long view of the situation and launch a sustained movement to remind the Americans of their mistake. It is regrettable, therefore, to see that there is an increasing number of Japanese, who, prompted by momentary impulse, commit mad acts."

The Miyako, another paper, also stresses the fallacy of an economic boycott:

"Before launching the anti-American boycott movement, they must carefully consider the effects of their agitation upon Japan's trade with America. Japan exports to America raw silk and tea, the two staple articles of export, and if Japan's boycott of American goods is to be met by a similar action, the blow it deals to Japanese interests would be certainly much greater than the blow American interests can suffer. Japan cannot dispense with American cotton and iron. American iron constitutes the nucleus of Japanese industry. It is, of course, very important that Japan should stand on justice, and the unjust and iniquitous treatment which America proposes to extend to her must be stoutly resisted, but at the same time it is important that in meeting the situation she should make a wise choice of methods by which to attain her aim."

On Choosing Wives

THE Old Testament tells us "who so findeth a wife findeth a good thing," while the poet Cowper, in one of his merrier moods, penned the following lines:

Misses! the tale that I relate

This lesson seems to carry—

Choose not alone a proper mate,

But proper time to marry.

These lines are recalled by the remarkable declaration just made in Japan by Miss Carolyn Wilson, a war correspondent and free lance writer, who says that American business men in the Far East choose wives poorly and that too many spouses in the Orient try to emulate Cleopatra and the Queen of Sheba. Too many American business men in India and China, says Miss Wilson, are hampered with wives who try to live the combined lives of Cleopatra and the Queen of Sheba. This startling indictment of her own sex is said to be based on a year and a half's residence in the Far East, under contract with a number of trade journals in the United States.

In comparing the average American business man in the Far East with the average English trade representative, Miss Wilson's comments are mostly in favor of the latter. "One of the great hindrances to the American business man in the Far East," the young lady declared, "has been the sort of wife he has selected to bring to a foreign land." Miss Wilson proceeds: "Too many American wives in cities in China and India spend their entire day in playing poker, bridge and mah jongg and it is not an unusual thing for them to lose several hundred dollars in the course of a single afternoon. How can any business man plan his expenditures with such an unchecked drain on his income? Poker parties start as early as ten o'clock in the morning and continue throughout the greater part of the day." (Can this really be so?)

Miss Wilson suggests that the American business man coming to the Far East should be unmarried and should come out with the intention of staying at least nine years. He should be fully acquainted with conditions in the country where he is to live. "Let him go home for a vacation at the end of his first three years and marry the girl of his choice, but be sure that he picks out one that will come out with him a help and not a hindrance. Too many American wives either become dissatisfied and persuade their husbands to break their contracts and return home, or else they launch themselves in a gay life of gambling and 'affairs.' The right kind of a wife can be a great help to a man in the Far East and the wrong type a great liability."

Miss Wilson, it is to be observed, does not mince words and she is certainly unsparing to her sisters in this part of the world. She apparently believes in calling a spade a spade and not an agricultural implement. But on the point whether American wives in the Far East are really as fearsome as Miss Wilson paints them to be, we have to remind her that it is always dangerous to make sweeping assertions of the nature to which publicity has been given in Japan. We scarcely suppose that American wives in the Far East are any better or worse than American wives in other parts of the world, and we very much fear that Miss Wilson has fastened on a few extreme cases which she has persuaded herself to believe are representative of American wives here as a class.

Miss Wilson reminds us of the American who comes to China brimming over with enthusiasm and a healthy thirst for knowledge, stays here for two weeks or so and then goes home to write a book about China. So far as Miss Wilson is concerned, she has not been in this country sufficiently long to form accurate judgments about the order of life in this part of the world, foreign or Chinese. After spending a year and a half in the Far East, Miss Wilson returned to the United States in 1922, and opened later two small importing shops in Chicago. She came to the Orient this summer on a buying and vacation trip and is returning in the President Grant leaving Yokohama July 9. Miss Wilson was correspondent for the Chicago Tribune until the peace negotiations were concluded and then returned to the United States and took up free lance writing.

One can understand fairy tales about foreigners in China indulging in orgies going well with some newspapers in the United States which pander to those who love sensation, but Miss Wilson cannot expect to make such sweeping statements in Japan without being challenged by those who know that she chooses too lurid hues in delineating the social life of American women in the Far East. It is perhaps just as well that Miss Wilson was sufficiently discreet to give expression to her opinions only after she had left China, and is, therefore, beyond the reach of her wrathful sisters, to whom she is not particularly charitable.

EXCERPTS FROM GREAT WRITERS

WHAT IS BERGSONISM?

Just now the most powerful spiritual force among intelligent people is Bergsonism. What is it?

Henri Bergson is a professor of philosophy in Paris. Crowds attend his lectures; young men are enthusiastic over his ideas; scientists see in him a new leader; women find in him a new religion.

However, he himself is a plain, sane man. He has no system. To him Bergsonism is absurd. He says nothing of God, of the soul, of morals. But for all that he has done more than any one man to redeem the twentieth century from the nightmare of pessimism.

In a nutshell, Bergsonism, if I may use the word, is an emphasis upon the instincts of men. The world has been cursed with a rule of reason; philosophy after philosophy has arisen, each rigidly argued out, and the end of all of them has been ashes in the mouth.

Henri Bergson leads the sick soul of the world back to its primal feelings. Intelligence is merely a critical and practical faculty. The race progresses, creates, moves, and loves by its instincts. This is but a hint of the gist of Bergsonism.

I am a Bergsonian. I was one before I ever heard of him. I can hardly think, without tears, of the immense debt we owe to this man who has saved the thinking world a dozen ways.

His "Essay on the Immediate Gifts of the Consciousness" demonstrates we are free, that our actions are original and bear the seal of our personality. In a second work, "Matter and Memory," he gives a new solution to the world-old problem of the relation of spirit and body. In "Creative Evolution," his greatest work, he establishes a new theory of the development of life. Bergson removes the terrible lassitude from modern thought, by addressing himself to the secret depths of the consciousness, and drawing us away from the abuse of reasoning.

He declares man to be the crown of creation, that we are freed from iron necessity, that we continually leave the impress of our personality upon nature, and that we are capable of "throwing down all things that resist, and of overcoming all obstacles, perhaps even death itself." Bergson is the greatest ally of faith, of the spirit, because he is not an ally, but disinterested.

He brings powerful and timely aid to the work of Carlyle, Ruskin, and Emerson, the work of emphasizing the importance of Me, against all matter, force, logic and institutions.

He is a godsend to all of us who hate the Philistines.

AMOI STUDENT TROUBLE

The following letter has been received regarding the recent student trouble at the University of Amoy:

University of Amoy
Amoy, June 20, 1924.

Dear Sir:—There was unfortunately an outbreak of student trouble at the University towards the end of May.

It arose from some of the students attempting to force the President to state his reasons for giving three months' notice to three teachers, viz: Messrs. Ou Yuan Hui, Y. T. Wang, S. Y. Yu, to discontinue their services in terms of their agreements.

The president refused to yield to mob pressure. The students went on strike and some of them forcibly confined three teachers who strongly disapproved of their conduct. The Acting Business Director was hurriedly called to give assistance. He in turn was surrounded. On seeing the menacing attitude of the students, some bricklayers and masons standing around attempted to rescue him, and in the scuffle pulled off three students, and took them away to the Construction Building where owing to their struggles, had their hands tied up. When the Business Director had freed himself he rushed to set the students free but they refused to be released, and brought false charges against the President that he had ordered 500 workmen to beat the students.

For some days the President had conducted his business at his residence in Kulangsu and not in Amoy. The whole affair was planned in advance by the students and the discharged teachers whose disgraceful conduct cannot be too strongly condemned, as they did not hesitate to sacrifice the time of the students by appealing to their youthful impetuosity to cover their compulsory retirement.

All the charges against the school and the staff who had tried to maintain order under great difficulties and with quite unexampled forbearance, are naturally quite baseless and false and do not deserve specific refutation.

During the week of disorder, one microscope and two typewriters were stolen. The ring-leaders proposed to start a University in Shanghai under the name of Ta Hsia University and to remove there the library and apparatus of this University!

On the police being informed of this wild scheme, and their taking immediate steps to protect the school property, the discharged teachers immediately left, and the students soon went away.

The student agitation was quite without any foundation except on the assumption that students being "The Public" had the right to dictate the school policy to the president and his "cabinet"—a contention which no university or educational institution can ever admit.

It is to be hoped that the ring-leaders of the whole agitation will now feel sorry for the great injury they had inflicted upon the students whom they had deliberately utilized for their own selfish ends. The school intimated quite privately to them that after three months their services would no longer be required. Instead of keeping the matter quietly to themselves as a teacher with any self-respect should have done, they immediately announced this to the students and thus started the agitation.

I am,
Yours faithfully,
Khaichung L. Huang, B.A.,
P.H.B., J.D.
Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Acting University Secretary.

"The American Flag In China Before 1870"

The following essay was the winner of the first prize offered to high school students by Mr. Edwin S. Cunningham, American Consul-General, as a feature of the flag-raising ceremony in connection with the celebration of July Fourth.

It was written by George Main, 722 Avenue Joffre, Aged 14, who is in his second year high school at the American School. Second prize was awarded to R. Edwin Worley of the American School. First prize in the second classification, of students in the lower grades, was awarded to Miss Maude Gray, 101 Route de Zay Zong.

BY GEORGE MAIN

The American flag was first seen in China shortly after the close of the Revolutionary War. In 1783 two American ships, the Empress of China and the Pallas, both of Boston, loaded in the harbor of Canton for the United States. Their cargo consisted of tea and silk. Two years later the American flag was again seen in China when six more New England ships appeared in Canton. Half of their cargo consisted of useless furs for the southern Chinese.

During the Napoleonic wars, America's trade with China increased. Since the European nations were too busy too look toward China's trade. The commerce between China and America had increased to such an extent that in one season fifty years after trade had been established, there were fifty-nine American ships at anchor at Canton, which trade was valued at 17,000,000 dollars. Gold and had reached its zenith before the treaty.

ports, the most northerly of which was Shanghai.

Under these circumstances, the United States lost no time in appointing a plenipotentiary who was given full power and explicit instructions to conclude a treaty on the same lines as the British treaty. Caleb Cushing was chosen as the man for the task. He was provided with a letter from the President of the United States to the Emperor of China. This letter was very unique. It commenced in a complimentary way. It inquired about the Emperor's health and complimented him on his great Empire. It mentioned that the United States was as large in area as China but not so great in population and that two such great nations should be friends. It then suggested that China should open several of its ports to American ships. The treaty was finally signed in a Chinese temple and Cushing's mission was successfully brought to a close. The American was then to be seen in several more Chinese ports.

The position of America with respect to China was one of complete neutrality, friendship, and disinterested aid in the preservation to China of her sovereignty and her place among nations. The friendship was due in part to the attitude of our government in regard to opium.

This lasting friendship between these two countries is shown by the fact that only twice have they come to arms against each other. Once was when Captain Armstrong fired on the Canton forts and the other time was when the American soldiers went to Peking at the time of the boxer uprising.

The American flag has often been seen to come to the rescue of other foreigners. A case of this was when the British and French fleets were attacking the Taku forts. Four foreign vessels were sunk and all were aground. The casualties numbered four hundred fifty, including both admirals wounded. An American commander entirely unauthorized went to the rescue of the foreign fleets. His excuse was that "Blood is thicker than water." But even with the opening of the treaty ports, trade between United States and China slackened. The civil war, the changing from sailing vessels to steamers, the opening of the Suez Canal, and a number of other factors caused this decided decline. So in 1870 the American flag had practically disappeared from China and Chinese waters.

DRESS

By Mary Marshall

The Shade Hat for This Summer Takes the Form of a Wide-brimmed Capeline.

The large capeline is no longer on trial. It has been accepted as one of the facts of fashion for the late spring and summer of 1924. At first some doubt was felt concerning this type of hat—any broad-brimmed hat, for that matter. The bobbed hair seemed to call for a small, close-fitting. The very small crown to fit the head above of its tresses seemed to be out of all proportion with the wide brim. Still certain milliners and fashion critics had faith in the wide-brimmed hat.

Various types of large hats were tried. There were "enormous pokes, with wide brims in front and brimless backs. There were wide-brimmed hats slashed and turned or rolled at side or back. There were large mushroom and stiff cartwheel hats. But they have survived only occasionally. The large hat that has survived seems to possess a fairly small, round crown—the high, imposing crowns are reserved for the narrow-brimmed shapes. The brim of the large hat is seldom stiff, but limber enough to make a graceful undulating halo behind the head of the girl who wears it. There is a trick in the wearing of these large hats. To be sure they are pulled fairly well down on the brow, but they are tipped a little further down at the back than at the front.

The large hat shown in the sketch is of rust-colored milan, trimmed with long streamers of georgette, which shade from deep to pale yellow.

FASHION FLASHES

At the French Exposition held in New York this spring it was observed that none of the French mannequins had bobbed hair, while several of the American girls who displayed French clothes were bobbed or shingled. This, one hairdresser says, is because French women already feel that short hair is inappropriate for evening wear. The short-haired woman is being induced to buy "transformations" of hair to pin on to her head at the back and sides to give a more formal coiffure. This is a great nuisance for lightning changes from day frocks to evening gowns. It is simpler to keep one's own long hair.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

ADDING COLOR TO FOOD
In modern times it was doubtless the French who first developed the psychology of food appeal. Perhaps in ancient times some luxurious race did the same thing. There may have been wise old cooks in Egypt or Creosote who realized that attractively colored foods tempted the appetite and revived jaded tastes. But in modern times it has been the French who have devised food colorings and it is

More Magic From Science

BY GARRETT P. SERVIS

As water runs through a tube, so light appears to run through a solid rod of the new fused-quartz glass which they have succeeded in making at the Thomson Research Laboratory at Lynn, Massachusetts. But, what an extraordinary thing it is that light should behave in that way!

You can put twists into a garden hose, but as long as you do not obstruct the inferior passage, water will run through it, either under the force of gravity, if one end of the tube is kept lower than the other, or by hydraulic pressure if the tube is laid level, or even pointed upward.

This does not astonish anybody because we know by common experience that only solid obstacles arrest the flow of water, while an open space, or an open tube, offer it a free passage. And when it flows through a tube the solid walls hold it to its course, not permitting any of it to escape.

But, what would you say if the hose were made of open network, through which water could freely pass, and yet, when you turned the water on, it followed the tube just as if the latter were made of perfectly impermeable material? That would seem rather like magic, would it not?

Well, that is what happens to a beam of light sent into one end of a solid rod of the fused-quartz glass that they are turning out at the research laboratory of the General Electric Company, in Lynn. The solid, transparent, glass rod acts for light and for heat, like a hollow tube or hose for water, and conducts it around corners and through twistings of the rod, without letting it escape at the sides. And this quartz glass is incomparably more transparent than ordinary glass—it is, perhaps, the most absolutely transparent solid substance known.

How then, does it manage to hold the light and keep it flowing like a confined current inside the transparent rod? Apparently the extreme transparency of the quartz serves to make the rod act like a hole in a more opaque medium, and the light follows the hole as water follows the steepest descent and the line of least resistance.

It is as if the air enclosing the rod served as a wall of relatively great opacity through which the rushing light beam does not pass. Even if one supposed inertia to keep it confined to a straight line, one would expect the same inertia to make it break through when compelled to turn a corner. The transmitting power of the new glass is said to be nearly three times that of window glass, and almost fifty percent greater than that of the finest optical glass ever made.

To say nothing of the uses which quartz glass will serve in medicine, on account of its property of freely transmitting the germicidal ultra-violet rays of sunshine, which are cut off by window glass, and its further property of transmitting heat, as well as light, like a current following the curves of a rod, so that it seems pos-still from France that we get most of the artificial coloring matter for this purpose.

To some Americans, there is something rather repulsive about this. Many of us would rather eat cakes frosted with an honest white than cakes frosted in vivid rose when we know that the color was produced by cochineal—the dried and powdered bodies of little insects.

At the large grocery stores you can buy coloring paste in red, pink, orange green and yellow—possibly other shades.

But for the purpose of the home cook a delightful green may be produced from water in which spinach has been boiled, and this may be used in sufficient quantities to color tea or cake frostings without imparting any spinach flavor to the food. Cranberry juice gives a beautiful rose or red and strawberry and raspberry juice supply a less vivid red during the spring and summer months.

New French Premier
Lauds LaborBritish Laborites Not Enemies Of France,
Says Herriot

By EDOUARD HERRIOT

Paris, May 19.—Our policy, speaking broadly, is the sole policy holding out hope for the future in the solution of world affairs.The first question which arises is: "Can we conceive that with such a policy collaboration is possible with the present Government of Great Britain?"It is banal to say that the policy of Great Britain is derived from her position as an island merchant, and that this policy is, by tradition, served with the instrument of her navy and with coal as a medium of exchangeFor England, political economy is a reason of state.
Paul Raynaud writes of "English decadence." This is a term which has already cost us dearly.In 1760 Rousseau wrote that England would be ruined
in twenty years. Napoleon had the same fantastic idea.
We will be prudent if we do not fall into the same error.The Labor Party in England is not the enemy of France.
This party was the first in England to affirm that the questions of inter-allied debts and reparations are one and the same, while on several occasions that party has declared that Germany should pay reparations.ECONOMIC SOLIDARITY
I am persuaded that Premier MacDonald will willingly accept the aid of France in the matter of economic solidarity between nations, which everything now demonstrates is urgently necessary. We could not have a bet-

INDUSTRY'S GROWTH

The number of industrial countries is being augmented daily. Technical education is becoming more general. The day has gone when England milled the cotton of the entire world, for today cotton is woven where it grows. The American producers of raw material now exercise the formidable trade domination hitherto exerted by the English.English coal is no longer king
—it has been dethroned by oil and electricity. Coal is allied to iron. Until 1840 America had not discovered iron. In 1885 England produced as much iron as Germany and the United States together. Today England is third on the list and America leads. Such are the causes of English unemployment.The solution is a dual one, and applies to France and other nations as well as to England.
It is first to augment the power of purchase of existing consumers, and secondly, to go out through the world finding new consumers.We rejoice that a party has taken power in England which understands veritable truths and is not afraid to apply them in its policy as it has with regard to Russia.

VIEWS ON RUSSIA

Russia is clearly entitled to a

DOWAGER QUEEN IS "VERY FRAGILE."

DOWAGER QUEEN ALEXANDRA

According to the London Daily Graphic, Dowager Queen Alexandra, widow of King Edward VII. and mother of King George V., of England, has been compelled to cease reading because of failing eyesight. The condition of the Dowager Queen, who is 73, is described as "very fragile."place in "the sun of equal treatment among nations. This need not mean that we approve of her theories."In certain quarters the claim is made that a reign of consumption in France would abolish salaried positions and militarism.
What an error! Salaries exist in Russia and the small employe was never so miserable as today.As to militarism, Admiral Debreuille, representing Russia, as proclaiming that the special situation of Russia makes necessary a fleet superior to that of all other nations. Russia, like Italy, will be saved only by democracy.The Ruhr has only made us lose a lot of time and a vast amount of money. We should never have undertaken that adventure. It was a mistake from the beginning.Premier Poincare, by accepting in 1924 what he refused in 1923, himself proved this viewpoint as most correct. The Belgian Government estimates the Ruhr receipts at 100,000,000 gold marks, but it forgets to count that $9,000,000 gold marks must be paid for the cost of the armies of occupation. Thus only about 11,000,000 gold marks remain as so-called Ruhr profits, which goes entirely to Belgium under her priority claims.

NOTHING FROM RUHR

France gets nothing whatsoever from the Ruhr. If therefore, there remains a single Frenchman who believes that the Ruhr is a productive range, he must be a lunatic. And to say that this security is not productive is to say that it must be changed.Here is where the reports of the experts come in. The Dawes report provides that we should exchange our Ruhr gauge for a plan providing for reparations founded on an international loan. This has always been the plan which we have urged on Parliament.The merit of the loan lies in the fact that Germany would no longer have as creditors France

and other impoverished allies,
but a gigantic mass of lenders and investors throughout the world.The plan of the experts represents an unique occasion to secure our legitimate demands.
No matter what admirable efforts our engineers make in the Ruhr, we cannot possibly get reparations by these efforts.
They will be less even than France could have obtained during 1922, but which the Government then abandoned, sacrificing the welfare of the country to private interests.

FINANCIAL QUESTION

For instance, the Reparations Commission decided that Germany should deliver 1,850,000, 000 gold marks in goods, of which 950,000,000 would go to France and the remainder to the Allies.The rest of the Allies took their entire quota, but France took only 151,000,000 gold marks in coal and coke, abandoning more than 3,000,000,000 francs worth of goods during one year, which could have been used for reconstruction of the devastated regions.The Government took this attitude at the behest of big interests who had suffered. It was alleged by the introduction of such large quantities of goods into France, that the financial question dominates everything. The opposition press dares to pretend that we have no program.
They forget that at the very beginning of the last Legislature, and at intervals since, we have voted proposed measures which in our judgment we believe necessary.In 1920 we demonstrated how frightful was France's situation, while England safely weathered the storm by strictly applying the income tax. The French Government contented itself with a continuation of the policy of borrowing, which there are no words sufficient to condemn, for it has brought France to her present
pass.At the same time the Government refused to pay money which was sent abroad.
Even today the Government
asked and obtained authorization to issue new treasury bonds.
And then when the manoeuvres
against the franc were started,
there was a panic.
RIGOROUS ECONOMY
Instead of striking at the real guilty ones—the profiteers—the Government forced Parliament
over our protests to vote a tax will imposing big additional taxation on the food of the masses.
They claimed fallaciously that they thus reconstituted the nation's finances.A long effort will be necessary to put this in order. The income tax must be applied down to the last centime, with theutmost rigor. And there must be no more of the sort of economy which suppresses a few small functionalities and leaves fortyfive admirals drawing big salaries.In exchange for the double decimal tax we have already brought forward a plan which rests not on a capital levy, but on a surplus tax in the pockets of large capital, which we would have as supplementary to the others now in force.There is a new battle to be fought. It is the battle of the producers, the big trust that has eaten into the heart of French politics and the Government, like worms eat into rotten wood, like leprosy corruption corrupts the press.The newspapers, which are calling themselves Republicans, are in reality commanded by the chief of staff of the problem, the
chief of staff of the problem, the chief of staff of the problem.A LONG BATTLE Our battle will be a long and hard one. The thing is to know whether France, after the battle,
has the will to restore the principle of order and equality which alone can give us peace.We have our house to be cleaned. One of our first tasks must be the cleaning of the French Embassy at Rome, which has become the centre of propaganda for the profiteers.
It was the Rome Embassy, remember, which began the strike against Joseph Caillaux. But it was equally the Rome Embassy which sent our Government the monstrous information concerning the causes for the fall of the franc, which the Government communicated to Parliament as true.We had this conspiracy against democracy, not only in Rome, but also at London. We are fighting a sordid conspiracy which sells the reins of government to sugar.For instance, there is the sugar scandal. During three years the profits of fifty sugar factories in France amounted to 554,000,000 francs, whereas the cost of 230,000 cultivators of beets amounted to only 3,000,000 francs.Look at the situation of the franc and then at the cost of living and you will know what something is radically wrong.
The cost of living shot up in February with the same rapidity
with which the franc fell.
But when the franc rose again
the cost of living remained high.What is true in sugar is true of all other commodities, and necessaries. The price of food are set by the oligarchy, the end of whose rule is now signalled in our recent victory in the elections.

A HEARTY AND SINCERE

We are called upon to smash the revolutionary propaganda, to give the warring masses confidence in the republic, to make evident the moral, economic and such a regime impose, and to transform the republic into an impassioned and impartial effort in which may safely be left the solution of the social problems, which are pressing on our shoulders.It is necessary that the republic have not only a body, but that it have a heart and soul.The party to which I belong has always been in the forefront of educational reforms, and day we insist that France shall realize the equality of all children. In the school it must be no longer possible that a child
because he is without fortune, should see himself barred from higher studies although he may be mentally equipped for them.In conclusion, on the eve of May the elections of the republic, a new day will be watered by good will, by all nations. It will soon bear fruit and our objective will have been gained.
